I write with reference to the above and in particular to the site in Kingswood identified as PS39 (south of Walkmill Lane).

Has consideration been given to the anticipated change to electric vehicles and their effect on existing roads? Walkmill Lane, for example, has many houses without garages and hence their vehicles are parked on the road, separated from the houses by a pavement. This already limits this road to, in effect, a single carriageway most of the time. If this road is to provide access to further development then the problems with traffic flow will only worsen, more so with electric cars parked for long periods of the day while being charged.

Rgards,
